After these words, Green was again closeted with the Rev. Michael Gallagher, a Catholic priest assigned to institutional work, and then two guards bound his arms and handcuffed his wrists for the march to the gallows. Green walked to the scaffold with unfaltering step, although he had been on the verge of a nervous breakdown the verge of a nervous breakdown the verge of a nervous breakdown the last twenty-four hours. Green was not kept waiting long. In forty seconds from the time he had mounted the stairs to the scatfold he had been made ready to be hanged and the trap was sprung.

Officials bound straps around his ankles and his knees, slipped the noose around his neck, tightened the knot, put the blace-cap over his face and sprang the trap.

The lobby committee went into recess at 1:30 having completed the examination of all Senators but six. Four of those not yet examined are out of the city, and two, Senators Culberson and Burleigh, are ill. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the committee is expected to enter on the examination of men suspected of lobbying.

Senator Poindexter in testimony shortly before the recess named former Senators Marion Butler of North Carolina, Charles Dick of Ohio, and Frank DuBois of Idaho, as men who have been active in trying to influence legislation, and also former Congressman Littauer of New York, and Watson of Indiana. Home Wanted by This Baby; Father's Disappearance Brings Wolf to Door

There I am right up in my mother's arms in the picture. Just think—only two months old and life a tragedy!

Will you make it into a romance?

My father has never seen me-doesn't know that I am alive in fact. My mother? Why, she is scarcely more than a girl, and a cripple.

She cannot support me for she is not strong enough yet to do much work, and I am all that she has, and yet she must give me up unless some one shows her the way. My grandfather is an old man and cannot support both of us, and as I do nothing yet but drink milk out of bottle I am the one who must go.
